Crimp "Red" Behind Bars.

One of the new crimps who were going to clean the waterfront of representatives of the press is languishing behind the bars of the police station lock-up. The new crimps, as was made known in yesterday's Advertiser, are "Red" and "George".
"Red," whose right name is Laughlin, is the gentleman in jail. He was arrested last evening on two charges. First, for being a vagrant, and then for assault and battery.
The assault and battery was committed on a sailor on the waterfront. "Red" wanted the sailor to conduct himself according to the orders of the crimps. It was something to do with shipping, but the victim was too drunk last night to tell his story or even to give his name. He wouldn't do what "Red" commanded, however, so "Red" proceeded to jump on his face and bang him in the head with his fists.
Then "Red" made his escape. The police had a hard time getting him. He was finally located in a lumber yard, trembling and profane.
The chase after him was a hot one, and all of Kakaako was out in force to aid the police in the capture.
Twenty or thirty natives and others were on the trail. The hiding crimp was evidently under the impression that he was to be mobbed when he was discovered in the lumber.
The big crimp McCarthy—the man with the oblique visuality and sunset hair—is also in jail, the whole six feet and more of him. He injudiciously smote a gentleman of the colored persuasion by the name of Johnson.
The police are wide awake and are especially on the alert for men who undertake to tell people on the beach that they have a "pull" with the department. "Red" has come to grief early in the game. He has hardly had time to get acquainted with the market price of sailors.

The Mauna Loa Arrives.

The steamer Mauna Loa, Captain Simerson, arrived yesterday from Kona and Maui ports. She brought the following cargo: 9,086 bags of sugar, 19 bags of coffee, 353 bags of taro, 23 bunches of bananas, 31 kegs of butter, 30 bags of awa, 5 bundles of hides, 6 pigs, 30 head of cattle and 320 packages of sundries.
The following passengers arrived on the Mauna Loa: C. B. Hale and wife, Miss E. D. Greigg, Miss E. P. Chamberlain, Col. Norris, C. F. Schermerhorn, C. Doyle, C. On Tai, A. Seale, Judge G. Clark, F. J. Behle, Lee Hoy, Mrs. E. Barclay, Miss M. Nathaniel, J. Morse and wife, Mrs. K. Kaalokowah, Mrs. K. Kapea, Mrs. K. Kealohapauole, W. A. Wall, Rev. W. M. Kincaid, J. Hennessey, Mrs. A. Lemon, Mrs. G. Dunn and son, A. A. Benson, W. H. Crozier and seventy-four on deck.
The Kinau for Hilo.

Wilders' steamer Kinau sailed for Hilo and way ports yesterday with the following passengers:

Miss Mary Brooks, Miss Rickard, Mrs. J. J. Carreiro, M. D. Monsarrat, Mrs. J. Ray Brill, Mrs. P. Johnney, T. E. Hobbs, W. Booth, Mrs. E. M. Loebenstein, Mrs. S. E. Redgway and daughter, T. R. Keyworth, Dr. Haenel and wife, H. Deacon, G. Haenel, Miss Morse, A. C. Gehr, H. B. Gehr, Mrs. E. S. Gill, A. H. Smith, R. H. Long, R. E. Starr, Sheriff Andrews, W. A. Wall and wife, N. A. Eager, F. A. Schmidt, F. McLaughlin, C. Lycourgas, J. H. Moragner, F. E. Richardson, A. Schierholtz, W. G. Goss, C. E. Meller, R. I. Randolph, W. Wawter, Mrs. A. Clarke, Dr. Raymond, Capt. H. E. Soule, John Maud, J. H. Lichtig, C. T. Michaels, H. S. Harkness and F. J. Polley.

WANG WINS A WARM WELCOME

Morse's Opera Bouffe Success fully Presented by the Stantons.

"Wang" attracted a good house last night that seemed thoroughly to enjoy the opera.
Why company after company comes to Honolulu and persistently opens with the worst bill in their repertoire, is a matter of wonderment. This is not an invariable case, but the Stanton Opera Company would be dollars ahead if they had opened with "Wang" instead of "Dorcas."
Last night's performance was entirely enjoyable, a heavier chorus would have helped matters, the costumes were a trifle mixed. "Wang's" second-act costume in particular, being decidedly anachronistic with its harlequin's doublet, but these were minor evils. The solos were well sung, the chorus did their best, and were well drilled, while the principals and chorus alike, entered into the fun of the opera bouffe with a zest that covered up any deficiencies.
Kunkel as Wang was excellent, the part suits him, as does the somewhat similar role of the Mikado. He was spontaneously humorous and his unusually good voice for a comedian, materially helped the opera.
Miss Stanton was decidedly fetching in her male attire, playing the part of the up-to-date young Burmese, prancing with a vivacity that won much applause.
Her "shady nook" ditty gained deserved encore, being delightfully acted as well as sung.
Harvey, as the elephant keeper, was genuinely funny. Without much to say, he enlarged on his opportunities and shared the comedy honors with Kunkel.

Miss Bertha Nielson as Marie, has a good voice and cleverly played her part with judgment and vivacity. Several encores were marked to her credit last night, her work being far in advance of her acting in "Dorcas."

Two seasons ago Miss Nielson was singing minor roles in Honolulu, and her capable grasp of her opportunities has won her many friends.

Talking of minor roles, Miss Goodrich's messenger boy deserves especial commendation. It was a clean-cut little piece of character work, and caught the house.

Kenworthy as the Cambodian envoy with nothing to say, also was capable in a minor part. Though wordless, he had a speaking makeup.

Miss Wisdom as the widow, was handicapped with a cold, but played up well to her would-be lovers.

Lyding was entirely satisfactory as the lover Lieutenant De Lacy as the doughty colonel, was uneven in his acting, or more correctly speaking, his acting was in the main better than his dialogue. Miss Norenberg did well as Gillette.

The always-popular moon song went well down to the "Impromptu" verse introduced by Kunkel.

Taken throughout, "Wang" won a warm welcome, and created a favorable impression. Performances of the same order of merit as last night's presentation will undoubtedly bring good houses during the stay of the Stantons.
